Welcome to Q Research General

We are researchers who deal in open–source information, reasoned argument, and dank memes. We do battle in the sphere of ideas and ideas only. We neither need nor condone the use of force in our work here.

"We hold these truths to be self–evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

>>24591987 (You) "We are in the depths of hell" Abby Philip has an EPIC meltdown on CNNPN. Abby lied about the 1965 voting act, being violated, she first didn't detail how how it was violated. I've read the law, she just drops the lie. Without detail.

Voting Rights Act (1965)

Citation: An act to enforce the fifteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States and for other purposes, August 6, 1965; Enrolled Acts and Resolutions of Congress, 1789–; General Records of the United States Government; Record Group 11; National Archives

This act was signed into law on August 6, 1965, by President Lyndon Johnson.It outlawed the discriminatory voting practices adopted in many southern states after the Civil War, including literacy tests as a prerequisite to voting.(if that's true, there are millions voting that aren't literate. They should have to take a test to be allowed to vote)

This "act to enforce the fifteenth amendment to the Constitution" was signed into law 95 years after the amendment was ratified.In those years, African Americans in the South faced tremendous obstacles to voting, including poll taxes, literacy tests, and other bureaucratic restrictions to deny them the right to vote. They also risked harassment, intimidation, economic reprisals, and physical violence when they tried to register or vote.As a result, African–American voter registration was limited, along with political power.

In 1964, numerous peaceful demonstrations were organized by Civil Rights leaders, and the considerable violence they were met with brought renewed attention to the issue of voting rights. The murder of voting–rights activists in Mississippi and the attack by white state troopers on peaceful marchers in Selma, Alabama, gained national attention and persuaded PresidentJohnson and Congress to initiate meaningful and effective national voting rights legislation. The combination of public revulsion to the violence andJohnson's political skills stimulated Congress to pass the voting rights bill on August 5, 1965.

The legislation, which President Johnson signed into law the next day,outlawed literacy tests and provided for the appointment of federal examiners (with the power to register qualified citizens to vote) in those jurisdictions that were "covered" according to a formula provided in the statute. In addition, Section 5 of the act required covered jurisdictions to obtain "preclearance" from either the District Court for the District of Columbia or the U.S. Attorney General for any new voting practices and procedures. Section 2, which closely followed the language of the 15th amendment,applied a nationwide prohibition of the denial or abridgment of the right to vote on account of race or color. The use of poll taxes in national elections had been abolished by the 24th amendment (1964) to the Constitution; the Voting Rights Act directed the Attorney General to challenge the use of poll taxes in state and local elections. In Harper v. Virginia State Board of Elections, 383 U.S. 663 (1966), the Supreme Court held Virginia's poll tax to be unconstitutional under the 14th amendment.

The Voting Rights Act of 1965 was the most significant statutory change in the relationship between the federal and state governments in the area of voting since the Reconstruction period following the Civil War; and it was immediately challenged in the courts. Between 1965 and 1969, the Supreme Court issued several key decisions upholding the constitutionality of Section 5 and affirming the broad range of voting practices for which preclearance was required. [See South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. 301, 327–28 (1966) and Allen v. State Board of Elections, 393 U.S. 544 (1969)] In 2013, the Court struck down a key provision of the act involving federal oversight of voting rules in nine states.

The Voting Rights Act had an immediate impact. By the end of 1965, a quarter of a million new Black voters had been registered, one–third by federal examiners. By the end of 1966, only four out of 13 southern states had fewer than 50 percent of African Americans registered to vote. The Voting Rights Act of 1965 was readopted and strengthened in 1970, 1975, and 1982.

(I can't find what Abby said, this act was violated. She just says shit and lies to get dem outrage.)

Narcissistic personality disorder is a mental health condition in which people have an unreasonably high sense of their own importance. They need and seek too much attention and want people to admire them. People with this disorder may lack the ability to understand or care about the feelings of others. But behind this mask of extreme confidence, they are not sure of their self-worth and are easily upset by the slightest criticism.

A narcissistic personality disorder causes problems in many areas of life, such as relationships, work, school or financial matters. People with narcissistic personality disorder may be generally unhappy and disappointed when they're not given the special favors or admiration that they believe they deserve. They may find their relationships troubled and unfulfilling, and other people may not enjoy being around them.24592082

b. Sussmann's attorney-client relationship with the Clinton campaign and Joffe

As part of its investigation, the Office obtained billing records from Perkins Coie related to the firm's representation of various individuals and entities, including t Clinton campaign, Tech Company-1, and Rodney Joffe. The records reflect that Sussmann repeatedly billed the Clinton campaign for his work on the Alfa Bank allegations. In compiling and disseminating these allegations, Sussmann and Joffe also met and communicated with Marc Elias, another partner at Perkins Coie, who was then serving as General Counsel to the Clinton campaign.[1290]

By way of background, in April 2015, the Clinton campaign engaged Perkins Coie a Elias to provide "legal counseling and representation of [the Clinton campaign] in connection to its legal affairs, including the Federal Election Commission and other regulatory requirements and general organizational and compliance matters."[1291] A f months later, the DNC and the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee engaged Perkins Coie to provide legal advice in connection with the "Federal Electi Commission and other regulatory requirements and general organizational and compliance matters."[1292]

After these engagements, in the spring of 2016, Perkins Coie engaged Fusion GPS behalf of the Clinton campaign. Fusion GPS was a Washington, D.C.-based consult firm that provided research and strategic intelligence services to clients, including corporations and law firms. As set forth in the letter memorializing that engagement, the purpose was for Fusion to support Perkins Coie's legal advice to clients on "defamation, libel and similar laws in which accuracy is an essential legal element."[1 Elias explained that Perkins Coie hired Fusion for research and investigative servic to assist Elias and Perkins Coie in representing the Clinton campaign.[1294] As part of those services, Fusion provided research and other services that were used to, amo other things, promote the Alfa Bank allegations to the media and the FBI.

i. The Alfa Bank allegations

Actions by Sussmann, Perkins Coie, and Joffe to promote the allegations

The Office's investigation revealed that beginning in late July or early August 2016, Sussmann, Joffe, and agents of the Clinton campaign together assembled and disseminated the Alfa Bank allegations and other derogatory information about Trum and his associates to the media and then to the FBI. Generally speaking, the Alfa Bank allegations pertained to Joffe and Elias declined to be voluntarily interviewed by the Office.

I worked with the Durham team and they had enough evidence to indict Elias but were shut down during Obama's third term (laughingly known as the Biden presidency).

The DoJ at that point was effectively run by Obama's crony Lisa Monaco and Maggie Goodlander, the wife of Hillary/Obama's consigliere Jake Sullivan who masterminded Russiagate.

The Trump DoJ should reopen the Elias case and indict him, there is more than enough evidence

President Trump highlighted in a post how Marc Elias is working with Shumer and others to steal the next election, and how these are the same people who did Russiagate.

President Trump is right of course: here is the extract from the Durham report showing how Elias conspired to steal the 2016 election.

"Chavez called the three owners …

THIS X post is from pages 82–84 of the following book:

Stolen Elections: The Takedown of Democracies Worldwide

by Ralph Pezzullo

A non–fiction account of an international conspiracy against freedom for every current and future American voter. It's being called the greatest criminal conspiracy in history!

In 2019, two U.S. government whistleblowers investigating the Venezuelan government's involvement in drug trafficking and money laundering, inadvertently discovered an international conspiracy to influence elections in the United States and in over 70 countries around the world. "Stolen Elections" describes how, according to the whistleblowers, the plot began with help and advice of Fidel Castro to Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez, (and his successor Nicolas Maduro) who developed and then rolled out a system of election fraud that was virtually undetectable. It was first used to steal the Venezuelan referendum of 2004, and subsequently penetrated the electoral systems of other Latin American countries, facilitating the elections of a string on left–leaning candidates in their respective countries.

"Stolen Elections" describes how the criminal conspirators have been determining the winners of US elections since 2006! What's more shocking is that this criminal conspiracy avoided detection by America's over $1 Trillion national security and intelligence apparatus, and for so long. It wasn't until the two very skilled, determined and courageous government whistleblowers penetrated the conspiracy by recruiting the actual software engineers who designed the system and brought the results of their investigation to the attention of the US Department of Justice and Office of the Director of National Intelligence.

It's easy to think DS will try something to distract from the May 17th 250 celebrations.

I hope folks remain safe.

anon thinks it won't be in DC, maybe in another country.

I don't know why I had to say that.

I just can't imagine shitcunts wanting it to be a great day.

They'll be seething for months about it already.

My first exposure to the idea of a 'Golem' was watching the X–Files, years ago LOL Recently I'd been thinking that corporations fit the definition of a Golem. Anyway, I googled the idea just now and apparently this is a well–known concern.

Is it time to revisit the privileges that we afford to corporations ?

NNSA Removes Highly Enriched Uranium from Venezuela, Reducing Risk to South America and the U.S. Homeland

The safe removal of all enriched uranium from Venezuela sends another signal to the world of a restored and renewed Venezuela. Thanks to President Trump's decisive leadership, the teams finished in months what would have normally taken years.

National Nuclear Security Administration

Urgent Operation Demonstrated Unique Nonproliferation Capabilities and Close Cooperation with International Partners

NNSA technical experts overseeing the loading of nuclear fuel into the specialized spent nuclear fuel cask.

WASHINGTON ––– In a win for America, Venezuela, and the world, the U.S. Department of Energy's National Nuclear Security Administration (DOE/NNSA), working with partners, completed the removal of all remaining enriched uranium from a legacy research reactor in Venezuela.

"The safe removal of all enriched uranium from Venezuela sends another signal to the world of a restored and renewed Venezuela," said Brandon Williams, NNSA Administrator. "Thanks to President Trump's decisive leadership, the dedicated teams on the ground completed in months what would have normally taken years."

President Trump and Secretary of State Rubio's three–phase plan for Venezuela fast–tracked the retirement of this nuclear risk, marking another historic milestone for DOE. Following DOE Secretary Wright's visit to Venezuela in February, in a matter of weeks, NNSA's Office of Defense Nuclear Nonproliferation (DNN) worked with Department of State personnel in Washington and Caracas alongside experts from the United Kingdom, the Venezuelan Ministry of Science and Technology, and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) to prepare for a site assessment to inform removal planning.

For decades, the RV–1 reactor supported physics and nuclear research. Once that work finished in 1991, its uranium, enriched above the crucial 20 percent threshold, became surplus material.

To secure this surplus material, the DNN team and technical experts from the Venezuelan Institute for Scientific Research safely removed 13.5 kilograms (about 30 pounds) of uranium from the RV–1 reactor less than six weeks after their initial site visit. Working in close cooperation with the IAEA throughout, the team securely packaged the uranium into a spent fuel cask.

The group then escorted the material 100 miles overland to a Venezuelan port. There, they transferred the cargo to a specialized carrier supplied by the U.K.'s Nuclear Transport Solutions. The vessel carried the material to the United States arriving on U.S. shores in early May. Upon arrival, U.S. teams unloaded the casks and transported them to the Savannah River Site (SRS) for processing and reuse.

Dr. Matt Napoli, DNN's Deputy Administrator, traveled to Venezuela to oversee the operation.

"I couldn't be prouder of the men and women who carried out this vital mission," Dr. Napoli said. "NNSA's long history in removing nuclear material and the team's extensive know–how were key to this success. I would also like to extend my appreciation to our Venezuelan partners for finalizing this material removal and establishing the foundation for future cooperation."

Man who ran paedophile dark web forums from his London flat and had 87,000 pictures of children on his computers is jailed for six years

A moderator of child sexual abuse sites on the dark web has been jailed for six years.

Matthew Slate, 36, was a 'global moderator' on Olympus, a pro–paedophile forum, and held prominent positions on six other child abuse pages across the dark web, the National Crime Agency (NCA) said.

Police found nearly 87,000 indecent images of children on three devices seized from Slate's house after he was arrested in March last year.

More than 15,200 of these were Category A, the most severe.

Slate used dark web forums to share content and have sexual conversations about the abuse of children.

The NCA said he also financed and co–created a new site designed as an image–hosting tool, another way for users to upload child abuse material.

A deadly bacterium is creeping up the US east coast. How worried should we be?

Warming ocean waters are priming beaches and raw shellfish for Vibrio even as scientists are trying to stay one step ahead

Bailey Magers and Sunil Kumar cut strange figures on Pensacola Beach. Bags of disinfectant solution surrounded them on the white sand; their gloved hands juggled test tubes while layers of rubber and plastic shielded their skin from the elements. As the two organized their seawater samples on the popular Florida shoreline last August, an older woman wearing a swimsuit walked over to ask what they were doing.

“We’re just actively monitoring water quality,” they told her, but she pressed on.

“Are you looking for that flesh–eating bacteria?”

“We’re looking into it,” they replied, hoping not to frighten her. The woman turned back toward the ocean, her curiosity satisfied. As she walked away, Kumar noticed that she had scrapes and bruises on her body. A few minutes later, he watched her step into the waves. He shook off a chill and returned to the task at hand.

Magers and Kumar study a bacterium called Vibrio, part of a lineage of ancient marine species that likely emerged sometime around the Paleozoic era. Researchers think there are more than 70 Vibrio species in the environment today, hundreds of millions of years later. The organisms float in warm, brackish water, attaching themselves to plankton and algae and accumulating in prolific water–filtering species such as clams and oysters.

A small number of Vibrio species can sicken and even kill. In worst–case scenarios, a person who has been exposed to the most dangerous of them –– by swimming in brackish water with an open wound or ingesting a piece of raw shellfish that is contaminated with the toxin – may find themselves with only hours before the flesh on one or more extremities starts to bruise, swell and decay. Without the quick aid of powerful antibiotics, septic shock can set in and lead to death. Anyone can get infected, though it is much more likely in people who have liver disease or are immunocompromised, elderly people or people who are diabetic.

(Are we really trusting the Guardian now? That CiA video on the board makes me finally wake up and recognize evil)

Netanyahu says Iran war is 'not over' as Trump rejects latest Iranian offer(he's been told to shut up, he always needs the spotlight)

SUN, MAY 10 20264:28 PM EDT

KEY POINTS

• Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said the war with Iran is "not over," as the U.S. and Israel still aim to end Tehran's nuclear ambitions.

• Netanyahu's comments come ahead of President Donald Trump's travel to China later this week, where he's expected to meet with Chinese President Xi Jinping.

• The Wall Street Journal reported details of Iran's response to the latest U.S. proposal to end the war.

(Bibi would make the U.S. stay forever. He's pissed Trump got all the media and not him. He had to know before the announcement by the U.S., so he shits on Trump by doing this.)

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said on Sunday that the war with Iran is "not over," as the U.S. and Israel still aim to bring an end to Tehran's nuclear ambitions.

"There's still nuclear material, enriched uranium that has to be taken out of Iran," he said in a taped interview on CBS's "60 Minutes" that is set to air Sunday night. "There is still enrichment sites that have to be dismantled, there's still proxies that Iran supports, there are ballistic missiles that they still want to produce … there's work to be done."

Pressed for how the U.S. and Israel would remove the nuclear material, Netanyahu said: "You go in, and you take it out."

Netanyahu's comments come ahead of President Donald Trump's expected trip to China later this week, where he's expected to meet with Chinese President Xi Jinping. The war and the subsequent closure of the Strait of Hormuz by Iran have spiked global energy costs and sharply raised gas prices in the U.S.

Washington and Tehran are trying to negotiate a peace deal through mediators in Pakistan, but the pact remains elusive.

U.S. President Donald Trump on Sunday rejected an Iranian counteroffer to a U.S. proposal to end the war, calling it "TOTALLY UNACCEPTABLE!" in a post on Truth Social.

The Wall Street Journal on Sunday reported details of Iran's latest response.

Hello all!!

Thanks to all that's watched over me. It cannot be said enough, thank you for keeping me safe. It's hard to accept my lot in life. It often slips my mind, and I surpress it all the time. But in moments like this, where I can look back to all the crap that's happened to me, it was you saving me. Behind the scenes and know me better than i know myself.

Thank you. From what I'm seeing out there, whatever is happening, it's working. From my mind into the minds of society...but people knew something was up for a long time. They just needed mental prompting to action it.

The mystery how all of this happened, how my 'medical' conditions produced wounds that resemble another in history. The water from the abdomen for six hours still freaks me out, it was like a malfunctioning drinking fountain. Leaked out 10L in all. The holes on my legs that just appeared from nowhere. Man, the list is long.

How is why I'm here. Not how am I here, no, how did this all work? It seems like they wrote my life backward starting from death. It's mind bending to think this is my body. Make me think that we all have our own realities, each on different.

So, how?

Thank you Anons and Anonettes

05/10/26 (Sun) 22:17:07 7ede32 No.24592250

Chief of Protocol for the U.S. government, Monica Crowley, has claimed that the administration will soon produce proof that President Trump actually won the 2020 election. That would have to be pretty solid evidence for anything to come from it, but we may be learning more in the near future, if Monica Crowley is correct.

Ambassador Monica Crowley, the U.S. government's chief of protocol, said the administration will "soon" produce evidence that proves President Trump won the 2020 election.

Ms. Crowley, speaking Wednesday at an event hosted by Breitbart News, didn't reveal more about the evidence but expressed confidence in what it would show.

"He did win in a landslide, and we will soon be able to give evidence about that," she said.

That matches comments by other high officials, including FBI Director Kash Patel, who have talked about evidence of a conspiracy to subvert the 2020 vote, which made President Joseph R. Biden the victor over Mr. Trump's vehement objections.

The claims that were raised during and immediately after the election were all rejected by courts and Congress, which confirmed Mr. Biden's victory.

That, of course, was the genesis of no small amount of controversy, including the J6 hooliganism in the Capitol that the left insists to this day in calling an "insurrection." Still, the times, they are a' changing, and there are investigations underway.

But a federal grand jury in Florida is newly pursuing the matter, and the Justice Department has hired and deployed Joe diGenova, a Trump ally, to help the U.S. attorney's office in southern Florida with the case.

Ms. Crowley suggested that Mr. Trump should have served in the previous term from 2021 to 2025, but added that it's fitting he's in office now to oversee this year's World Cup soccer extravaganza and the 2028 Olympics, both in America.

So, assuming this evidence is real, compelling, convincing, and shows proof of an illegally rigged election, what then?
